PREFACE

THIS book of genealogical records has been written to preserve the information obtained by the writer concerning the descendants of William Foreman, who came from London, England, in 1675, and settled near Annapolis, Maryland. It contains the results of much labor and research, of many visits to the localities of the homes of the original American ancestors and a continued correspondence for many years. Family, church and town records and those of wills, deeds and local histories have been examined so far as by diligent search any of these sources of information could be found.

The plan of the work has been to trace one line of the descendants of William Foreman to his grandson, John Foreman, of Bath, N. H., and afterwards to add all the latter's known descendants. These are followed by the records of the ancestors of Rebecca (Chamberlin) Foreman, wife of John Foreman, traced in single lines of descent from all known original American ancestors to the intermarriage of some descendant of the line with a descendant of one of the other lines which is continued until it, in the same manner, is merged in another.

The same system has been adopted relative to the ancestors of the writer's paternal grandmother and his own mother. In the latter case, the lines are first brought down to the maternal grandparents, Charles Dix and his wife Prudence (Wells) Dix, and afterwards all the known descendants of these two grandparents are added.

The work is supplemented by a single line of the families of the descendants of Edward Frisbie, an original settler of Bradford, Conn., to the present time.

The original American ancestors, except William Foreman, settled in Massachusetts or Connecticut. All the facts attainable relating to them have been included in this work, but with few exceptions no attempts have been made to record more than the dates and places of births, marriages and deaths of their descendants. Otherwise, the work would have been too voluminous.

All of the ancestors were English. There appears to have been no intermarriage with persons of any other nationality.

The writer is indebted to Mrs. Darwin Clarence Converse for the larger part of the record of the Walter Powers family; to Mrs. Laura Ann Heydenreich for a record of the John Farman family; to Mrs. Harriet Sprague Robbins for the record of the family and descendants of Richard Farman, and to Miss Mable Farman for procuring and compiling the records of the descenants of Benjamin and Harvey Farman, sons of John Foreman, of Bath, N. H. Very valuable aid has also been given him in obtaining early historical facts by Mr. Frederic P. Wells, author of the history of Newbury, Vt., and other works.

The principal historical facts relating to the original settler, Edward Frisbie, of Branford, Conn., and his immediate descendants, are extracts kindly furnished by the Rev. Edward S. Frisbee, D. D., of Albany, N. Y., taken from an unpublished genealogical work that he has lately written.

There were no official records of marriages, births or deaths in the state of New York and most of the western states until a very recent period. Family records were the only sources of information. In some cases these have fallen into the possession of strangers or those only remotely related to the family, and have been lost or destroyed. In several instances they have been burned. These conditions have added much to the labor of preparing these records and will account for their incompleteness.

The names of persons through whom descent is claimed are throughout the supplemental part of this book printed in capitals.

FOREMAN-FARMAN-FORMAN GENEALOGY

FOREMAN FAMILY.

First Generation.

Family 1.

WILLIAM[1] FOREMAN* arrived in Maryland in 1675. He came with thirty-four others in a vessel sailing from London. A land warrant for 1,750 acres of land was issued 18 June, 1675, to "Michaell Stuppel and Stephen Barnard," who are described in the warrant as "mariners of London," for transporting into the province of Maryland "to inhabit" these thirty-five settlers.

The second Lord Baltimore, to encourage the settlement of the province, granted him by Charles I., made liberal grants of land to the settlers. In 1636, 1,000 acres were granted to every five men and to a number less than five, 100 acres each, 100 to the wife, if one was brought, the same for every man servant, 50 acres for each child under sixteen years of age and for every maid under forty. Twelve pence under the name of rents was to be annually paid in lieu of taxes. The amount for each settler was from time to time diminished until, in 1675, the grant in payment of transportation seems to have been fifty acres for each person.

William Foreman became a planter and settler in St. Margaret's Westminster Parish, Anne Arundel Co. In 1707, a record of land owners was made and he then owned a tract of land called "Bear Neck," situated on Bodkin Bay, about fourteen miles north of Annapolis. Several successive generations of his descendants afterwards lived in the same vicinity.

His will, dated 11 Sept., 1727, was admitted to probate 15 Dec., 1730. It disposes of lands and personal property, mentions his wife Elizabeth, his son Joseph, his daughter Mary

* In the land warrant the name is written Forman; in all subsequent documents, Foreman.

ALDRIS, and his grandchildren PHILIP and WILLIAM, sons of JOSEPH, and JOSEPH, WILLIAM and THOMAS, sons of his daughter Mary Aldris. His wife Elizabeth's will was dated 31 March, 1733; admitted to probate 22 June, 1733. Assuming that William had arrived at manhood at the time of his landing at Annapolis he was over seventy-five years old at his death.

Family 2.

JOSEPH[2] (William[1]) FOREMAN, a planter, son of William and Elizabeth Foreman, m. 6 Feb., 1720, Anna HURD, who d. Nov., 1757.* His will, dated 1 May, 1753, was admitted to probate 25 May, 1753, and bequeathed lands lying on Bodkin Creek, two negroes† and other personal property. The legacy

* Dates of the birth and marriage of Joseph Foreman and the births of his children are to be found in the records of St. Margaret's Westminster Parish, Anne Arundel Co., Maryland. These records are now in the possession of the Bishop of Maryland. Joseph's will and those of his father, mother and wife are recorded in Annapolis, Md.

† The following traditional incident may interest some of the descendants of Joseph Foreman:

It is related that John Foreman of Bath, N. H., the son of Joseph, stated to his son, Roswell, that the earliest event of which he had a vivid remembrance was of seeing his father come home with two slaves he had bought in Annapolis. The particular circumstance that impressed the event on his child-mind was that the two negroes were riding his father's horse and his father walking. The explanation was that it was in the winter and the slaves were barefooted and their feet were being cut on the frozen ground to which they were presumably unaccustomed. To avoid this they were permitted to ride. This incident was related by Roswell to his son Mitchel by whom it was communicated to the writer in his youth. At that period the planters of Maryland had few slaves and the two mentioned were probably bought from a newly arrived slaver.

to his son JOHN, was twenty pounds. His wife, Anna's will was dated 12 Nov., 1757, and proved 16 Nov., 1757. It bequeathed one negro and other personal property to her daughter, Welthy Foreman, and small gifts to some of the other children.

FOURTH GENERATION.

Family 3.

JOHN[3] (Joseph,[2] William,[1]) FOREMAN, m. in Newbury, Vt. (then N. H.), in 1764, REBECCA, dau. of Richard and Abigail CHAMBERLIN. She was b. in Northfield, Mass., 13 Mar., 1749. Richard Chamberlin will be mentioned in another part of this record under the head of the Chamberlin Family. Rebecca was one of his thirteen children and landed with him at Newbury in 1762. This was the third family that settled in that town, then the most northern settlement on the Connecticut river. She was only fifteen years old at the time of her marriage. In 1801 she removed with her son, John, to Augusta, Oneida Co., N. Y. John having died in 1812, she afterwards resided with her son, Moody, in the same town. As late as 1820 she was still a vigorous woman but died soon afterwards.

JOHN FOREMAN, soldier and farmer, son of Joseph, entered in the year 1756 the British Army as a volunteer for the war then being waged by the English against the French colonists in North America. He went from Annapolis to New York, thence up the Hudson and through the wilderness by the way of the Mohawk, Oneida Lake and Oswego River to Oswego, where he remained till the last year of the war, 1760. He then went down the St. Lawrence to Montreal and later to Three Rivers. In 1763, having been retained in the service nearly three years after he was entitled to his discharge, he with two other volunteers, left the army at Three Rivers and made their way through the forests to the colony of New Hampshire. They lost the Indian trail and wandered in the wilderness six months, subsisting by hunting and such fruits and roots as they could obtain. At one time they came so near starvation that they sat down on a log to cast lots to determine which of the three famishing men should be food for the others. While thus occupied, a moose and two calves came in sight. They secured the mother and one calf and thus were relieved from their desperate situation. They remained at this place a number of days to recover their strength and dry their meat.* They had with them a small amount of silver money. This in their weak condition had become a burden and was buried. Some time afterwards they came to the Connecticut river or one of its tributaries which they followed down stream for many days. Finally they came to an open place covered with grass where a horse was feeding. This gave the name to "Horse Meadow,"† in Haverill, N. H. Supposing the horse had strayed, they shot it for food. Starting again on their journey the next morning they soon discovered smoke near the Ox-bow at Newbury. They had met an Indian a few days before, the only human being they had seen since leaving the vicinity of Three Rivers. Fearing they were near an Indian village, one of the men crossed the river cautiously to reconnoiter. He soon returned accompanied by white settlers to the relief and joy of his comrades. The owner demanded payment for his horse and the men gave one or more of their guns in settlement of his claim. The settlers, on learning the facts, raised by subscription a sum to satisfy the claim and returned the guns. The gun of John Foreman was carried by his brother-in-law, Silas Chamberlin, at the Battle of Bunker Hill.‡

* Written in the will, Ezebias, in church record Hezekiah.

"JOHN FOREMAN served in the Revolutionary War in Capt. Barron's company of Bedel's regiment and was also employed on account of his knowledge of the French language in special service in Canada, particularly to visit the settlements along the St. Francis and the St. Lawrence, with a scouting party in 1779 and 1780." He remained in Newbury until 1771 when he settled in Bath, N. H., on what is known as the William Abbott farm at the mouth of the Ammonoosuc, opposite the present village of Woodsville, where he resided till his death in 1792. This farm consisting of four hundred acres and all his personal estate he bequeathed to his wife, Rebecca, to hold and use during her life, and after her death to his son, John, on condition that he should remain upon it, pay certain legacies and take "good care" of his mother "to her satisfaction till her death" and of the minor children till they arrived at the age of fourteen years.

ROSWELL FARMAN FAMILY

FIFTH GENERATION.

Descendants of WILLIAM FOREMAN, the settler, in the line of ROSWELL FARMAN, son of John and Rebecca (Chamberlin) Foreman, of Bath, N. H.

ROSWELL[4] (John,[3] Joseph,[2] William,[1]) FARMAN was a farmer and settled after his first marriage in Bath, buying a farm of 200 acres in the valley of the Connecticut, a little above the Ammonoosic river and near that of his father. This he sold in two parcels in 1794 and 1797. In the latter year his two brothers, Joab and John, came to Oneida Co., New York, and bought lands, the former in the town of Paris and the latter on the Oneida Reservation in what is now the north part of the town of Augusta. Roswell remained in Bath until 1803, and then came to Oneida Co., N. Y. Three years later he removed to New Haven, then a part of the town of Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y. It is probable that he was attracted to this section by the accounts heard in his childhood of the sojourn of his father as a soldier in Oswego fifty years before. All the accounts of the early visitors to Oswego, at the time of the old French war, described it as a most charming place. He bequeathed the farm on which he resided to his youngest son, George W.

The following is from Judge John C. Churchill's History of Oswego Co., in his account of the early settlements:

"ROSWELL FARMAN came from Vernon, Oneida County, in the spring of 1806, accompanied by his eldest son, Zadok, then fifteen years old. He settled three-fourths of a mile west of the present village of New Haven and lived there until his death, in October, 1839. The country, on his arrival, was an almost unbroken forest and he came the greater part of the distance from Oneida County by following a line of blazed trees. There were only two small clearings between the place where he settled and Oswego. The first summer he cleared a few acres of land, planted and raised a small quantity of corn, built a log house and went back in the fall to Oneida County. In the following winter he returned with a cow, a few sheep, a yoke of oxen, a sled and his family, which then consisted of a wife and five children (one daughter and four sons), the youngest five years old.

"One or two incidents will suffice to show the wildness of the country. On the journey from Oneida County they stopped for the night at a log house, which served them as a tavern. The cow, sheep and oxen were placed in a log barn. In the night, a pack of wolves, attracted by the animals, surrounded the buildings and not only made the forests echo with their howlings but also made an onslaught upon the doors of both the house and the barn with such fury as to create serious alarm.

"On arriving at their rude cabin the sheep were put into a log pen that had been prepared for the purpose the previous summer. It was covered with poles and brush and supposed to be secure against wolves. The family went on, for the night, a mile further, to the Baily place.* On their return in the morning, they found their sheep pen had been broken into and their little flock all killed by the wolves. To-day, when the great majority of the people have an abundance of the necessaries of life and live in comparative luxury, it is difficult to appreciate such a loss to a family, almost wholly dependent upon the fleeces of their flock for their clothing and bedding in their new forest home."

ROSWELL FARMAN† m. (1) Bath, N. H., 23 Mar., 1785, Ruth TURNER; b. 2 April, 1767; d. Bath, N. H., 25 Dec., 1788; m. (2) Abiah HUTCHINS, daughter of Capt. Jeremiah Hutchins, of Bath; b. Haverhill, Mass., 22 March, 1763; d. New Haven,

* The Bailey place was only a clearing of a few acres in the dense forests. Between this and Oswego, nine miles distant, there was then only one settler who had felled a few trees and built a log cabin. Where the the city of Oswego now is there was then only the old forts of the French War, a gate house at the ferry and two rude dwellings.

† At the time of the death of John Foreman, Sr., the family name was changed to Farman, for what reason is unknown. Some of the sons who had previously held offices under the name of Foreman afterwards held, in the same town, the same positions and were taxed under the name of Farman. Lands deeded to them under the name of Foreman were afterwards deeded by them under the name of Farman.

WALTER POWERS came with his parents from Bath, N. H., to Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1795. The family located on what is now known as College Hill, near the present site of Hamilton College. After his marriage he removed to the town of Augusta, where he later bought a large farm on which he lived till the time of his death. He was a successful and prosperous farmer, happy in his domestic relations and a worthy, highly respected, influential citizen. He had the satisfaction of living to see his sons and daughters also successful in life and to be surrounded in his later years with a large number of grandchildren.

SAMUEL ARA[6] (Zadok,[5] Roswell,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William,[1]) FARMAN, fourth and youngest son of Zadok and Martha (Dix) Farman, b. 6 Dec., 1835. At the age of twenty-one he went from New Haven to Wyoming Co., N. Y. He was a clerk for a short time in Perry in that County, 1857 to 1858, and afterwards in Fillmore, Allegany Co., N. Y. He then became a partner in a well established mercantile business of that place. Soon after the inauguration of President Lincoln, in 1861, he was appointed postmaster. In 1862 he was authorized by the Governor of the State of New York to enlist a company of men for service in the War of Secession, and within forty-eight hours had enrolled sixty volunteers. He entered with his men the 130th Regiment of New York Infantry, and was commissioned as First Lieutenant. This regiment was transferred the following year to the Cavalry service and became the "First New York Dragoons." Soon after entering the service he became quartermaster of his regiment. In the battle of the Deserted House, Jan. 30, 1863, the regiment suffered severely in killed and wounded. He was in the siege of Suffolk the following April and May. Late that summer he was obliged to resign his commission on account of disabilities incurred in the service. He returned to Wyoming County, N. Y., and entered the mercantile business at Hermitage on his own account, in which he continued many years, being in the meantime again appointed postmaster. He m. Hume, N. RICHARD FARMAN FAMILY.

SIXTH GENERATION.

Descendants of WILLIAM FOREMAN in the line of Roswell Farman, son of JOHN FOREMAN, of Bath, N. H.

RICHARD FARMAN, second son of Roswell and Abiah (Hutchins) Farman, came with his father from Bath, N. H., to Vernon, Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1803, being then seven years old, and to New Haven, N. Y., with the family in the winter of 1806-07. After his marriage in 1817, he resided in Augusta, N. Y., until the death of his wife, in 1828. He then returned to New Haven, where he married his second wife and remained till 1838. In that year he removed to Lyons, Ionia Co., Mich., where he resided till his death, Aug. 28, 1862.

He had a large share of pioneer life and was one of those sturdy, honest, industrious and religious men, many of whom removed about the beginning of the last century, from New England to New York and farther west, and who have left their stamp of morality and thrift upon the communities they aided in founding.

Mrs. Lucetta Farman was, while in N. Y., a member of the Presbyterian Church, but in Michigan, she yielded to the preference of her husband and with him united with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Farman very early became a pronounced, ardent and aggressive opponent of slavery. The M. E. Church at that time was too tolerant of a system that he considered one of the greatest sins, for him to continue in its fellowship. He withdrew from it and connected himself with the Wesleyans. It was not popular in those days to be what was termed an abolitionist and with others who had the courage of their convictions he suffered obloquy and petty personal persecutions from his former friends and Christian brothers, the real annoyance and grief of which we cannot now appreciate. He was, however, a man of that excellent judgment and sterling character that always commanded respect and admiration. He lived to see the commencement of that bloody and terrible struggle, that was to end slavery in the U. S., but it was not his fortune to realize his long-cherished wish of seeing that institution a thing of the past. Neither was he permitted to witness the rejoicing over the fact of its termination by all his surviving former associates, a rejoicing as hearty and enthusiastic as his would have been had he been permitted to be with them. Opinions changed and every one became, or claimed to have been an abolitionist, ab initio.

JOAB FARMAN

JOAB FARMAN FAMILY

FIFTH GENERATION.

Descendants of WILLIAM FOREMAN, the settler, in the line of JOAB FARMAN, second son of John and Rebecca (Chamberlin) Foreman, of Bath, N. H.

JOAB FARMAN moved from Bath, N. H., to Paris, Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1796 or 1797. He held office in Bath in 1790 and 1791 under the name of Foreman. After the death of his father, from 1793 to 1797, he appears on the tax list of that town under the name of Farman. He and all his brothers continued during their lives this spelling of their family name. Lands in the town of Paris, N. Y., were deeded to him in 1797. His name appears on the tax roll of that town in the same year for the first time. In 1808 he removed to Ellisburg, Jefferson Co., N. Y., where he resided until his death in his ninety-eighth year, the 11 of Oct., 1864. His tombstone, erected in Ellisburg some years later, gives his age as two years more than it really was.

(2) Sacketts Harbor, 10 June, 1847, Lucy KELLOGG; b. 10 Dec., 1822, in Rodman, Jefferson Co., N. Y. Residence of Mrs. Foreman: Morrison, Ill.

* In the letter before mentioned addressed to the writer, dated Feb. 9, 1894, and signed "B. S. Farman," he says, "For years I have written my name 'Farman,' but my children as they grew up took a fancy to write it Foreman and every one follows it."

BENJAMIN SIMMONS FOREMAN, was an architect. He left his parental home at the age of eighteen, going first to Canada and then to Bangor, Maine. He studied architecture and after his marriage removed to Sacketts Harbor, N. Y., where he continued the business of his profession many years. He afterwards resided for a short time in Rochester, N. Y., and then removed to Sterling, Ill. When the county seat was changed from Sterling to Morrison, he removed to the latter place, where he remained till his death, 11 Jan., 1899.

ii. Albert Addison, b. 6 June, 1840; d. Ft. Richmond, N. Y., Harbor, 2 Dec., 1862; unmarried. He was then a volunteer in the U. S. service, an orderly sergeant in the N. Y. Battery of Heavy Artillery, and acting clerk. The following extracts are from a letter written at the time by Capt. A. Cleghorn, his commander, to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Foreman.

> "Anything I may offer you now would be but poor consolation in the hour of your affliction—an affliction that falls not only upon our company but the whole Battalion. Albert, by his kindness of heart and manly and officer-like conduct, had drawn many hearts towards him. His death fell upon us with a stunning blow. * * * In the loss of Albert, I have lost a personal friend in whom I could confide, and an officer who was ever ready to carry out the prescribed discipline. I miss him to-day, and I shall miss him many a day to come. In mentioning this morning his death to General Brown, the old hero expressed his sorrow at his loss. All who knew him have the same expression of sadness. His memory will ever be dear to his officers and comrades, and the fragrance of his many virtues will not soon lose its sweetness."

E. W. Holden

EIGHTH GENERATION.

Descendants of WILLIAM FOREMAN in the line of JOAB FARMAN, son of John and Rebecca (Chamberlin) Foreman.

Family 13.

EDWIN BABCOCK[7] (Emeline Theodosia,[6] Benjamin Simmons,[5] Joab,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William,[1]) HOLDEN, son of Edwin Ruthven and Emeline Theodosia (Foreman) Holden, b. 19 Nov., 1861; m. New York City, 17 Apr., 1889, Alice CORT; b. New York City, 2 Nov., 1864; dau. of Nicholas Leonard and Amanda Hall (Peckham) Cort, of the same city.

EDWIN BABCOCK HOLDEN graduated with high honors at Columbia College in 1883. He was best known as a student of literature, history and art, a collector of rare books and engravings, particularly engravings relating to early American history. He took great interest in the preservation of the historic engravings of New York City and the portraits of Washington, of which latter he possessed the best extant collection.

He erected a beautiful residence on Riverside Drive, one floor of which was largely devoted to his exceptionally well selected library of over 10,000 volumes and his rare historic collections. He was a member of many clubs and societies and highly esteemed by all his associates for his excellent, discriminating judgment, his sincerity and nobleness of character.

The following memorial minute adopted by the Council of the Grolier Club, of which he was president, correctly expresses the sentiment of consideration and esteem in which he was held by all who knew him well.

"The members of the Council of the Grolier Club record with profound grief the death of their fellow member, the president of the club, Edwin B. Holden.

"A member of the club for nearly the entire period of its existence, and of the council for the greater part of that time, Mr. Holden has specially served the club as treasurer, secretary, vice-president and finally as chief executive, bringing to every office and duty careful thought, unflagging zeal, unwearied industry and conspicuous efficiency. No member of the council has ever shown a more discerning appreciation of the object of the club, or a more intelligent understanding of the best methods of promoting its interests.

"Through years of intimate intercourse with Mr. Holden, the members of the council, holding always in high estimation his clear judgment and marked ability, have been equally impressed by his unvarying sincerity and openness of character, while their personal feeling toward him has been one of growing and deepening affection, mingled with sympathetic admiration of the fortitude and cheerfulness with which he had borne repeated ordeals of ill health and bodily suffering.

"As an ardent lover and zealous collector of books and prints and varied works of art, Mr. Holden was possessed of a keen perception and rare taste, discrimination and judgment. As a student of literature and history—especially the history of the colonial and revolutionary periods of the country and the history of the City of New York—he was as remarkable for painstaking thoroughness as for splendid enthusiasm. Imbued with appreciation of the messages of history, he was a patriot and citizen of a type the value of which becomes more and more manifest. The loss of such a man is a loss to the country and this community, which those who care deeply for the past of either and hope strongly for the future of both must deeply deplore.

"In the more personal of life-relations—the sacredness of which is fully recognized—the affection, the refinement and the charm of the man were too well known by the members of the council to be ignored in this tribute. Unable to estimate the greatness of the loss which, through his death, has befallen those who were bound to him by the closest ties, they cannot refrain from expressing the fullest measure of their sympathy.

"The secretary is instructed to spread this minute upon the records of the council and to prepare a copy for signature by its members and transmission to Mr. Holden's family, and to mail a printed copy to each member of the club, and include the same in the next year book."

JOHN FARMAN FAMILY

FIFTH GENERATION.

Descendants of WILLIAM FOREMAN in the line of JOHN FARMAN, third son of John and Rebecca (Chamberlin) Foreman.

Family 1.

JOHN[4] (John,[3] Joseph,[2] William,[1]) FARMAN, third son of John Foreman, of Bath, N. H., b. Newbury, Vt., 1768; m. Esther GOODWIN, in 1799, of Haverhill, N. H., dau. of Richard and Elizabeth (Flanders) Goodwin. She was b. 15 Aug., 1777; d. Ellington, N. Y., 15 May, 1872. She m. (2) in the summer of 1818, in Augusta, N. Y., Jason BUMPUS; b. JOHN FARMAN probably first came with his brother Joab to Oneida Co., N. Y., in the year 1797. That year he purchased and took a deed of 235 acres of land on the Oneida Reservation, in the north part of the town of Augusta. He returned to Bath some time afterwards, married, and with his mother Rebecca deeded (10 Feb., 1801,) under the name of John Foreman to William Abbott the farm in Bath willed to them by his father, who had owned and occupied it from the year 1772 until his death. This farm, conveyed by two deeds, consisted of 400 acres lying on the north side of the Ammonoosic River at its junction with the Connecticut, these two rivers forming its southern and western boundaries. It was opposite and adjoining on the north the present village of Woodsville. After executing these conveyances he came with his mother, wife and child to Oneida Co., stopping at first in Paris where his brother Joab lived. Here his second child, Richard, was born. Soon afterwards he settled in Augusta on the lands he had previously purchased. He died in Oppenheim, N. Y., 15 Feb., 1812, from an attack of fever while on his return from a journey he had made to Albany, N. Y.

ELIZA ANNA[6] (Ella Farman), (Rev. Tural Tufts,[5] John,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William,[1]) FARMAN, dau. of Rev. Tural Tufts and Hannah (Burleson) Farman, b. 1 Nov., 1837; m. South Weymouth, Mass., 11 Nov., 1877, Charles Stuart PRATT, son of Loring and Laura (Vining) Pratt, of South Weymouth, Mass. He was b. in that town 10 Feb., 1854.

MRS. PRATT began to write when a girl. About 1870 she took up literary work in earnest, under the name of "Ella Farman." With the starting of the Wide Awake magazine in 1875 began her great editorial work for children, which she continued for more than thirty years. The magazine brought Miss Farman and Mr. Pratt together, and they were thereafter associated in editorial work. They edited Wide Awake seventeen years. During most of that time they also edited Babyland and had charge of Little Men and Women. Then followed an editorial connection with the S. S. McClure literary syndicate. Later they resumed editorial charge of Babyland and Little Men and Women. On the commencement of the publication of Little Folks, in 1897, they became its editors, and continued this work until the death of Mrs. Pratt. Since her death Mr. Pratt has carried on the work alone.

Mrs. Pratt was the author of many books. Among her early works were the Allie-Bird series, consisting of A Little Woman, Grandma Crosby's Household and A Girl's Money. About the same time she wrote Anna Maylie, Mrs. Hurd's Niece and A White Hand, and soon after The Cooking Club of Tu-Whit Hollow, Good-for-Nothing Polly (honored with republication abroad), and Sugar Plums (verse). Later she wrote Happy Children, The Play Lady and The Little Cave Dwellers. She was the author of numerous magazine stories and articles which were widely read, including How Two Girls Tried Farming.

Mr. Pratt is also a well-known author. Among his books are Bye-O Baby Ballads, Baby's Lullaby Book—Mother Songs, Buz-Buz and Riddle Rhymes, Stick-and-Pea Plays and Little Peterkin Vandike. He has also written many magazine poems, articles and stories, including the $1,000 prize story, A Celestial Crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt have devoted their lives with the greatest success to the entertainment and the moral and intellectual elevation of children and young people.

He came with his brothers to Oneida Co., N. Y., at the beginning of the last century, probably with his mother and brother John in 1801. After his marriage in 1809, he lived about twelve years at Augusta Center and Vernon Center, N. Y., and then moved to Janesville, Onondaga Co., N. Y. He was by occupation a millwright, and at the time of his death was in Rochester, N. Y., constructing a flouring mill. His death was the result of a fall by which his skull was fractured. A newspaper published in what was then the village of Rochester (Sept., 1825,) spoke of him as a "mechanic of the first order" and a "worthy citizen." His remains were taken to his home in Janesville, N. Y., where both he and his wife were buried.

MOODY FARMAN m. 1809, Hannah MCEWEN, of Oneida Valley, N. Y., who died, Fayetteville, N. Y., summer of 1844. The funeral services were conducted and the sermon delivered by the Rev. Richard Falley Cleveland, father of ex-President Cleveland, then pastor at that place.

iv. Charlotte, b. 3 May, 1811; m. Alva COLLINS. She was drowned 15 Oct., 1833, with her husband, their infant child, her brother, Jesse Holmes, and her cousin, Curtis Farman, son of Simpson Farman and the wife and child of Curtis, while crossing Henderson Bay from Henderson Harbor to Point Peninsula in a small boat. The cause of the accident was unknown. The writer very distinctly remembers a conversation in Ellisburg, N. Y., between his father and Nathan Farman, son of Joab Farman, in 1844, relating to this misfortune.

Nathan then resided in the town of Ellisburg. He said there was at the time no storm nor dangerous wind and that either of the young men could easily have swum across the bay. His theory was that an oar or row-lock was broken, causing the small and rather heavily laden boat to capsize, and that in the attempt to save the mothers and children, all were drowned.

RICHARD CHAMBERLIN FAMILY

Line of descent from RICHARD CHAMBERLIN, who first settled in Braintree, Mass., to REBECCA CHAMBERLIN, who married JOHN FOREMAN in Newburg, Vt., in 1764.

Family 1.

RICHARD CHAMBERLIN is first mentioned in the Records of Braintree, 19 Dec., 1642. The birth of his son Richard is there recorded as of that date, and the death of the same child, 25 Dec., a year later.

He soon afterwards removed to Roxbury, where he resided till his removal to Sudbury, 1666 to 1668. This is the present village of Wayland. He purchased land in this place and made it his residence till his death in 1673. His will, under name of Richard Chamberlin, was dated 12 of Feb., and probated 15 Apr., that year (Middlesex Probate Records, Vol. 4). He gave his dwelling and lands to his oldest son, Benjamin, subject to the support of his wife. He made to his sons and daughters the following bequests: Rebecca, £20; Joseph, £20; Mihitable, £18; Ann, £18; Elizabeth Daniels, 40 shillings; Mary Graves, 1 shilling, and to his grandson John Graves, 40 shillings. His real estate was appraised £102, and his personal £9, 16s., 6d. He m. Sarah BUGBEE, of Roxbury, dau. of Edward Bugbee. She is supposed to be his second wife.

Children:

i. Richard, b. 19 Dec., 1642; d. 25 Dec., 1643, in Braintree.

ii. Benjamin,
iii. JOSEPH, Family 2,
iv. Mary,
v. Rebecca,
vi. Ann,

} b. in Roxbury; baptized there 4 June, 1655.

vii. Mehitable; baptized in Roxbury 28 Jan., 1666.

viii. Elizabeth; mentioned in will as Elizabeth DANIELS.

Family 2.

JOSEPH[2] (Richard[1]) CHAMBERLIN, son of Richard; b. Ruxbury, Mass.; d. in Oxford, Mass., 8 Aug., 1721. He was a soldier in the Narragansett War and engaged in the "Swamp Fight" of Dec., 1675. He resided in Sudbury till 1713 when he removed to Oxford, Mass. He and three of his son, NATHANIEL, Ebenezer and Joseph, Jr., were among the proprietors of that town, thirty in number. The place had been originally settled by the French Huguenots and abandoned. He aided in the organization of the town and was one of the first Board of Selectmen. His will was dated Oxford, 4 Mar., 1721. It was entered in the Suffolk Records, now in Boston. His real estate was appraised at £220 and his personal property at £86, 13s. 6d. His sons Benjamin and Simon were designated as his executors. He m. at Sudbury, 28 Aug., 1682, Hannah GILBERT. In his will he mentions five sons, NATHANIEL, Ebenezer, Joseph, Benjamin and Simon, and two daughters, Hannah and Rebecca. On the 22 Feb., 1731, several members of the family conveyed to Joseph all their rights in their father's lots laid out or to be laid out to "ye soldiers which were in ye fight commonly called ye Narragansett or 'swamp fight.'" (See Suffolk and Sudbury Records and Daniels' History of Oxford, pp. 434-5.)

Family 3.

NATHANIEL[3] (Joseph,[2] Richard,[1]) CHAMBERLIN, son of Joseph, b. Sudbury, Mass. (now village of Wayland), 1689. He was one of the original proprietors of Oxford, whither he moved from Sudbury with his father in 1713. In 1722 he sold his land in Oxford and went to Hatfield. He was a member of Capt. Dwight's Co. at Fort Drummer in 1725. "On the 11th Sept., 1725, a scout of six men was sent out from Fort Drummer by Capt. Dwight, and when eight miles west of North River, while eating lunch, about 2 o'clock, they discovered some Indians on their track within eight rods of them. They jumped up and ran seven or eight rods, when the Indians made a shot at them, and they turned and shot at the Indians. Two of the latter were seen to fall, when the soldiers scattered. Thomas Bodurtha of Springfield and John Pease of Enfield were killed.

Edw. Baker of Suffield, John Farrar of Ashford, and Nathaniel Chamberlin of Hatfield were taken. Anthony Wiersbury only escaped and returned to the fort." (Massachusetts Archives.)

Nathaniel next appears upon the record of Northfield, Mass., where in 1728 he was granted a piece of land on which "to set up a house and garden spot." He was in the Crown Point expedition of 1755, in the garrison at Northfield in the French and Indian War, in Col. Williams' regiment in 1759. He d. at Northfield, 7 Nov., 1780, leaving, according to the Church Record of that place, "a good name behind him." He m. Elizabeth HUNKINS, sister of Thomas Hunkins, of Roxford, who was baptized 24 Feb., 1706. He and his wife both became members of the church at Oxford.

Children (b. at Oxford, except Mary, who was b. at Northfield):

i. RICHARD, b.. 9 July, 1714. Family 4.
ii. Moses, b. 30 Mar., 1716.
iii. Nathaniel, b. 3 Jan., 1718.
iv. Elizabeth, b. 30 Aug., 1719.
v. Sarah, b. 31 May, 1721.
vi. Mary, b. 13 July, 1727.

Family 4.

RICHARD[4] (Nathaniel,[3] Joseph,[2] Richard,[1]) CHAMBERLIN, son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Hunkins) Chamberlin, b. Oxford, Mass., 9 July, 1714; resided in Northfield, Mass., according to the town books from 1731 to 1753. He afterwards for a time resided in the adjoining town of Hinsdale, N. H. From 1747 to 1758 he was connected with various military operations. In June, 1762, he removed from Hinsdale to Newbury, Vt., with his wife and a family of thirteen children.

The following is an extract from an article written by Mr. Fred P. Wells, the historian of the town of Newbury, Vt., and published 25 May, 1894, at Bradford, Vt., in the United Opinion, under the title "Some Heroes Who Lie in Newbury Cemetery":

"A few feet from Col. Thomas Johnson's monument, a crumbling stone marks the grave of Richard Chamberlain, one of the first settlers of Newbury. He came of a race of pioneers, fitted by nature to cope with wild beasts and savage men. Such are invaluable in a new colony; fearless, resolute, ready to drop the axe and take up the musket.

"Some of them became so skilled in all the wiles of Indian warfare, as to be a terror to the Indians themselves. The grandfather of Richard was a soldier in King Philip's war. His father, Nathaniel Chamberlain, seems to have been content only to live on the frontier, pushing forward into the wilderness again as the country became settled. He was in several wars, appears to have been at the front when there was any fighting going on with the Indians. He was once or twice captured by them, and when he must have been nearly seventy, served with his son, Richard, and his grandson, Abial, three generations of them, in the Old French war. Yet, in spite of all his hard service, he lived to be 91 years of age.

"Richard, the pioneer of Newbury, was one of thirty men, under command of Capt. Phinehas Stevens, who defended the fort at Charlestown, N. H., then called "Number Four," in April, 1747, for three days and nights against a large force of French and Indians under Delaplaine. This was one of the most desperate sieges on record.

"We find him again in 1758 in Col. Williams' regiment with his son, Abiel. If he was with his company the whole term of his enlistment, he saw hard service.

"Again we find Richard Chamberlain, 'landing at the old ferry with his family about noon' of a June day in 1762, the third family in Newbury. Once more, he was on the extreme verge of civilization. He appears to have been an active, busy citizen, holding the offices of constable and selectman, as well as others whose titles are almost meaningless to our ears, of deer-reeve, field-driver and tything-man. His wife was one of the original members of the First church. They had thirteen children, eight of whom were sons. The youngest was drowned in 1773; the other seven served in the Revolutionary war, in one way or another. One was at Bunker Hill. As if he had not seen fighting enough in his life, we find Richard at 61, enlisted in Col. Thomas Johnson's company of minute men in 1775. He died in 1784, in his 71st year. His descendants are very numerous in all this region, and others have, inheriting the restless qualities of their race, wandered to all parts of the country; some very prominent people are among them. Five of his sons are buried near him."

"Richard was probably also a member of the First church with his wife. There are records of several church meetings held at his house. He was the oldest man in the settlement and seems from the town and church records to have been highly esteemed. A part of the record on his tombstone has been defaced by time. We can only read of the date of his death 'died 16 ——ber, 1784.' His wife, Abigail, dau. of Remembrance Wright, of Northampton, Mass., is mentioned as living in 1795. Richard is always spoken of in the records as Mr. Chamberlin." (Wells' History of Newbury, Vt.)

The records fully sustain the facts above stated.

According to the early annals he came up the Connecticut river and landed with seven of his family about noon. "Before night a hut with posts, bark, etc., was erected in which they lived for three months. A large stump in the middle, covered with boards, served as a table." The other members of the family came up the river later. He with two of his sons, Joseph and Abiel, were among the original grantees of the town of Newbury by deed from Governor Benning Wentworth, of New Hampshire, dated 18 Mar., 1763. The original instrument is now in the archives of the New England Historical Genealogical Society. According to the records of Northfield, Mass., his and his wife ABIGAIL'S children were as follows:

i. Abigail, b. 28 Aug., 1736; d. 5 Sept., 1815; buried Newbury, Vt.

ii. Joseph, b. 18 Mar., 1738.

iii. Abiel, b. 22 Nov., 1739; d. 14 May, 1787; buried Newbury, Vt.

iv. Uriah, b. 28 Feb., 1741-2; d. about 1830; buried Rygate, Vt.

v. Er, b. 24 June, 1744.

vi. Nathaniel, b. 5 May, 1746.

vii. Benjamin, b. 15 Dec., 1747; d. 15 Dec., 1833; buried Newbury, Vt.

viii. REBECCA, b. 13 Mar., 1749; m. John Foreman, at Newbury, Vt. See John Foreman Family.

ix. Louisa, b. 25 Dec., 1751.

x. Silas, b. 19 Jan., 1754.

xi. Richard, baptized 2 Nov., 1755.

xii. Martha, baptized 16 Apr., 1758.

xiii. Eri, baptized 22 Feb., 1761.

Six of the sons, Joseph, (Lieut.) Abiel, Er, Nathaniel, Silas and Richard, Jr., were at Saratoga in Capt. Johnson's Company in 1775. All served in the War of the Revolution, except the youngest, Eri, who was drowned in the Connecticut river 3 July, 1773, at the age of twelve years. Rebecca married at age of fifteen JOHN FOREMAN. ANCESTRAL RECORDS

The following records contain the names of the American ancestors of ABIAH (Hutchins) FARMAN, wife of ROSWELL FARMAN, of New Haven, N. Y., so far as they have been ascertained. Only a single line is given from the original settler to the marriage of the descendant with one of the descendants of another ancestor. These records, except as otherwise stated, are copied from the town records of Haverhill, Mass. It will be noticed that among the original American male ancestors there appears the names of Hutchins, Corliss, Page, Haynes, Mitchell, Bradley and Dow, and among the female Wilford, Davis, Whittier, Hendrick, Moulton, Storcé and Williams. Several of these ancestors were killed by the Indians during the war of 1686 to 1700.

HUTCHINS FAMILY

Family 1.

JOHN HUTCHINS and his wife Frances were among the first settlers of Newbury, Mass. They were there as early as 1640. They afterwards moved to Haverhill, Mass., probably about 1652, Murick says 1646, where they died, he in 1674 aged 70 years, and she 5 Apr., 1694. In the year 1653 the wife "was presented to the Court for wearing a silk hood, but upon testimony of her being brought up above the ordinary ranke was discharged." The wife of one Joseph Swett was presented at the same time for the same offence and fined ten shillings. The sumptuary laws then prohibited the wearing of articles of dress that did not accord with the means or rank of the wearer.

These cases are related by the historian of both Newbury and Haverhill and in each instance as if the parties were of their respective towns. Hutchins may have owned property in both towns as he seems to have been a man of considerable means, the assessed value of his property in Haverhill being about that time, more than double that of any other of its tax payers. Haverhill and Newbury were adjoining towns, the latter lying between the former and the ocean and having been first settled.

The earliest allusion to servants in Haverhill is that of the death in 1668 of "Hopewell," an Indian servant of John Hutchins. As we understand the history of the period she was a slave.

Children:

i. William, probably born before their settlement in Newbury. He was, says Savage, perhaps the William Hutchins, of Rowley, taken by the Indians in 1698.

ii. JOSEPH, b. Newbury, Mass., 15 Nov., 1640; d. Haverhill, Mass., 19 Apr., 1689. Family 2.

iii. Benjamin, b. Newbury, Mass., 15 May, 1642.

iv. Love, b. 16 July, 1647.

v. Elizabeth, } These two children may have been older
vi. Samuel, } than the others and born previous to the father's arrival in Newbury. No record of their births has been found.

Family 2.

JOSEPH[2] (John[1]) HUTCHINS, son of John and Frances Hutchins, of Haverhill, Mass.; m. Johanna CORLISS, dau. of George and Joanna (DAVIS) Corliss, 29 Dec., 1669; b. Haverhill, Mass., 28 Apr., 1650. Joseph took the oath of fidelity 28 Nov., 1677.

Children (b. Haverhill, Mass.):

i. John, b. 5 May, 1671.
ii. Johanna, b. 27 Sept., 1673; d. 5 Feb., 1677.
iii. Francis, b. 7 June, 1676.
iv. Mary, b. 9 Mar., 1678-9.

xi. Mary, } b. 6 Oct., 1779.
xii. Elizabeth, }

In 1783 the family moved to Bath, N. H. The Hutchins seem to have been, through these four generations, a well-to-do family, and Jeremiah, known as Capt. Jeremiah Hutchins became immediately on his arrival in Bath a man of local prominence. The first town meeting of that town was held in 1784, the town having been previously governed by the proprietors, and he appears as one of the Selectmen then elected. He was several times a member of the state legislature and his sons were also at different times chosen as representatives in that body.

CORLISS FAMILY

Family 1.

GEORGE CORLISS was one of the original settlers of Haverhill, Mass. That town was settled in 1640. His marriage was the second in the town.

Chase, in his history of Haverhill, says: "George Corliss came from England to Newbury about the year 1639, being at the time about twenty-two years of age. He is believed to be the first one of the name in this country and the ancestor of most if not all, of that name in New England." He m. Joanna DAVIS, 26 Oct., 1645, by whom he had one son and seven daughters.

"Corliss was an enterprising and industrious man, and well qualified to take a prominent part in the settlement of a new town. He settled in the West Parish, on the farm of the late Ephraim Corliss, now owned by his son Charles, who is of the seventh generation, from the original grantee. George Corliss at his death was possessed of a large landed property. He owned most of the land on both sides of the old 'Spicket Path,' as it was then called, for a distance of more than three miles." He d. 19 Oct., 1686.

Children:

i. Mary, b. 8 Sept., 1646; m. William NEFF. She was taken by the Indians with Mrs. DUSTON in 1697, and assisted in that terrible but heroic slaughter, in which two women and a lad killed two strong Indians, two Indian women and six children and effected their escape from the depths of the wilderness, where they had been led as captives. Mrs. Neff was then a widow, her husband having died in the army at Pemaquid in Feb., 1688. She lived on a farm given her by her father, but at the time of the attack by the Indians, as a neighbor, and according to the custom of the times, was attending Mrs. Duston, who had a child only about one week old.

The Indians that attacked Haverhill at this time murdered or took away as prisoners thirty-nine persons. A small party of them entered the Duston home, forced Mrs. Duston from her bed, not giving her sufficient time to fully dress, set fire to the house and hurried away with her, her infant and Mrs. Neff into the forests. Soon after starting, the Indians took the infant and "dashed out its brains against a tree." The two women were taken by the captors, to whom they had been allotted, to their wigwam on the Merrimack River, a short distance above the present city of Concord, N. H. Here Mrs. Duston and Mrs. Neff conceived and, six weeks after their capture, a little before dawn on an April morning, executed their heroic plan by which they obtained their liberty.

Taking the scalps of their victims as a proof of their deeds, the gun, scalping-knife and tomahawks of the Indians and such provisions as they could obtain, they and the lad who had assisted them embarked on an Indian boat and after a long and dangerous voyage in which they endured much suffering, they reached their home. To Mrs. Duston's great joy she found alive her other seven children, from two to seventeen years old, who had been most heroically defended by their father.

The Colonial Legislature voted to Mr. Duston on account of his wife's deeds twenty-five pounds, to Mrs. Neff twelve and a half pounds and to the lad, Samuel Lemerson, the same amount.

Many presents were made to them by governors and other prominent persons. Forty years later when Mr. Duston had died and his widow became the wife of Mr. Bradley, the General Court, on account of her deeds and sufferings, granted her two hundred and fifty acres of land, and to Joseph Neff, son of Mary (Corliss) Neff, then deceased, two hundred acres. In 1861 the citizens of Haverhill erected a suitable monument to the memory of these heroic women.

iii. DEBORAH, b. 25 Nov., 1866; m. Jeremiah Page.

HAYNES FAMILY

Family 1.

JONATHAN HAYNES was one of the early settlers of Newbury, Mass., and remained there until about the year 1685, when he moved to the adjoining town of Haverhill where he was killed by the Indians, 22 Feb., 1698.

There are different accounts given by different writers relative to Jonathan Haynes and his family. That given by Guy C. Haynes, of East Boston, in 1855, to the Boston Historic-Genealogical Society, is the fullest genealogy of the family. Although it has been somewhat criticised, the facts are for the most part taken from the early town records and the rest, as Mr. Haynes says, are from family traditions. I had copies of the local records as well as the local histories before seeing Mr. Haynes' account. It seemed to me so nearly correct that I have adopted it, simply making from local histories some additions and explanations. In this case following my plan of tracing the different lines back to the original American ancestors, I only embrace of the Haynes family the original settler and his children, as I am descended from his daughter Ruth, who married Joseph Corliss, as appears in the Corliss genealogy that I have given.

The following is the account given by Guy C. Haynes as published in the New England Genealogical Register, vol. ix., page 349:

"GENEALOGY OF THE HAYNES FAMILY."

(Communicated by Guy C. Haynes, Esq., of East Boston):

"At a meeting of the Historic Genealogical Society held in Boston July 11, 1855, Mr. Haynes, a member, exhibited a cane given to his grandfather, Thomas Haynes, of Haverhill, Mass., on his liberation, as a reward for his good conduct, by an Indian chief to whom he had been captive. Mr. Haynes also made a statement in regard to his ancestry from which it appears that he was the fourth generation from the emigrant Jonathan Haynes, who was born in England about 1616,—that he was born when his father was 71 years old, and that his grandfather was born when his father (the grandfather of Mr. Haynes), was 64 years of age. One of Mr. Haynes' sisters was upwards of fifty years older than he. It was voted to enter the statement then made upon the records of the Society, and Mr. Haynes was requested to prepare a more detailed account of his family for the Register, in compliance with which request he has furnished the following genealogy."

"JONATHAN HAYNES was born in England in 1616. The precise time when he came to this country is unknown. Tradition says 1633, or between 1633 and 1635. Tradition also says that he was a brother of Gov. John Haynes of Connecticut, who emigrated in 1633 and of Dea. Samuel Haines of Greenland, N. H., who emigrated in 1635. There are circumstances, which make it probable that William Haynes, of Salem, who was made freeman in 1648 was a brother of Jonathan.

"JONATHAN HAYNES removed with his family from Newbury to Haverhill between 1684 and 1687, as his son Jonathan was born in the former place, and his last six children were born at the latter. He settled in the West Parish of Haverhill on the river (or Hawkes Meadow) road.

"On the 15th of August, 1696, he with four of his children, viz: Mary, Thomas, Jonathan and Joseph were taken by the Indians in his field near Bradley's Mills. The father was reaping and the children picking beans within sight of the house. The Indians with their captives, immediately started for Pennacook (Concord, N. H.). When they arrived there, they divided their prisoners. One party, taking the father and Thomas, started for their homes in Maine. Soon after they arrived in Maine the prisoners found an opportunity to escape. (See History of Haverhill, pp. 84-5).*

"The other party took Mary, Jonathan and Joseph and went to Canada and sold them to the French. Mary was redeemed with 100 lbs. of tobacco carried upon a handsled; Jonathan, and Joseph never returned but married in Canada, had families and became wealthy farmers."†

* Myrick's history is the one here cited. There is a confusion of the names in both of the histories of Haverhill, that of Joseph being substituted for Thomas. This arose from the old accounts of the Indian Wars speaking of the "oldest son" escaping with his father and being with him at the time the father was taken the second time and killed; and Joseph being the oldest son mentioned in the Haverhill records of births, was supposed by the town historians to be the "oldest son," they having overlooked Thomas, who was born in Newbury.

† Chase, in his History of Haverhill, after giving an account of the escape of the elder Haynes and his sons from their first captors, adds:

"After travelling two or three days, with scarce anything to satisfy their craving appetites, the old man sunk down exhausted. Finding his efforts to encourage his father were vain, the son started onward and soon after coming to the top of a hill, he climbed a tall tree to see if he could discover any signs of civilization. But no such joyful sight was his. After the first bitter gush of grief had passed and while he yet hesitated which course to take his quick ear caught the sound of a sawmill. He listened. There was no mistaking that familiar sound and, with a glad heart and bounding step he followed it, and soon found himself at the Saco. His story was soon told and with ample assistance and a bottle of milk he hastened back to his father, whom he found as he had left him—laid down to die, without the hope or expectation of ever again looking upon the face of a friend. The milk and the good news revived him, and with considerable difficulty he reached Saco. Here they remained until their strength was sufficiently recruited when they started for Haverhill, where they soon arrived without further difficulty. (History of Haverhill, Mass., by Chase, p. 184.)

At this time Joseph was but seven years old and could not have made the journey and given to his father the aid mentioned. Moreover, he and his brother Jonathan were taken to Canada and never returned. They were remaining there as farmers as late as 1757, the time of the French War and were visited by some of their relatives, who were in Canada as volunteers. They then spoke only French, having wholly forgotten their native language. It is, therefore, evident that the name of Thomas should be substituted for that of Joseph in these narratives.

"On the 22nd of February, 1698, Jonathan Haynes and Samuel Ladd were killed by the Indians in Haverhill. Their two sons, Thomas Haynes and Daniel Ladd, were taken prisoners and carried to Pennacook." (Myrick's History of Haverhill, p. 101). "When Thomas Haynes was redeemed nearly a year later, the Indian Chief gave him his best cane, as a token of respect for his good behavior while a prisoner. The cane is about 3½ feet in length, the top being round and the rest of the cane eight sided. Each side is ornamented with figures, (some diamond shaped, others square or diagonal), all neatly cut with a pen knife. There is an iron ferule and a spur at the end. This cane is now in the possession of a grandson."

"JONATHAN HAYNES married in Newbury, Jan. 1, 1674, MARY MOULTON, who died soon after. His second wife to whom he was married at Hampton, 30th Oct., 1674, by Samuel Dalton, was Sarah MOULTON, born at Hampton, 17 Dec., 1656, daughter of Wm. Moulton and Margaret (PAGE) his wife." "His children were:

i. Mary, b. at Newbury, 15 Nov., 1675; d. young.

ii. Mary, b. at Newbury, 2 Oct., 1677; m. John PRESTON, 7 Jan., 1706; settled at Windham, Ct.

iii. Thomas, b. at Newbury, 14 May, 1680; d. 6. Dec., 1771; m. in Haverhill, 22 Dec., 1703, Hannah HARRIMAN, who d. 12 Feb., 1761.

iv. Sarah, m. Wm. CORBETT, of Lebanon, Ct.

v. Jonathan, b. at Newbury, 3 Sept., 1684; taken by the Indians 15 Aug., 1696, and sold to French in Canada.

vi. Margaret, b. at Haverhill, 3 Mar., 1686-7; m. Thomas KINGSBURY, Jr., who removed to Windham, Ct.

vii. Joseph, b. at Haverhill, 4 Aug., 1689; taken by the Indians, 15 Aug., 1696, and sold to the French in Canada.

viii. RUTH, b. at Haverhill, 10 Feb., 1691-2; m. JOHN CORLISS, son of John and Mary (Wilford) Corliss, of Haverhill, Mass. See Corliss Family.

ix. Hannah, m. John HEATH, of Norwich, Ct.

x. Abigail, m. Jacob WARNER, of Conn.

xi. Elizabeth, b. at Haverhill, 22 Mar., 1696-7; m. Isaac SPAULDING, of Plainfield, Ct."

The Guy C. Haynes statement says that Ruth Haynes married Joseph Corliss. This is a mistake. The Haverhill record both of his birth and marriage reads "John Corliss."

I have found no record of the births of the three sisters, Sarah, Hannah and Abigail, and, as Mr. Haynes does not give the dates, I conclude his evidence is family tradition.

Some criticisms have been made by Savage on account of the mention of those three sisters without record proof, and on account of the statement by Haynes that his ancestor was first married when he was about fifty-eight years old. He may or may not have had a wife previous to the marriage of Mary Moulton. That he was well advanced at the time of the births of his children is very evident. The births of eight of them are shown by the records of Newbury and Haverhill, of which I have official copies, and, that he was an old man at the time of his capture by the Indians, is shown by all the narratives. In the account of his first capture and escape, it is stated that the "old man sunk down exhausted." After he was killed and the war was closed, and the Indians became friendly they were asked why they killed him and they replied "he so old he no go with us," meaning he was too old and infirm to endure the journey to Canada, where they were in the habit of taking their prisoners to receive from the French their promised reward.

CAPT. JAMES MITCHELL, the husband, d. 19 Dec., 1745.

BRADLEY FAMILY

Family 1.

DANIEL BRADLEY is first mentioned in the history of Haverhill in 1682, when he leased the "parsonage farm" for twenty-one years. He is afterwards mentioned several times as one of the Selectmen. On the 13th day of August, 1689, he was killed by the Indians. (Chase's History of Haverhill, p. 153.*)

This was about the time of the reopening of hostilities by the Indians after a number of years of peace. Haverhill for seventy years was on the frontier with vast unexplored forests on the north and west and few towns of New England suffered more from the barbarities of the savage tribes then living in Maine and New Hampshire.

DANIEL BRADLEY m. 21 May, 1662, Mary WILLIAMS; d. 6 Oct., 1714.

Children:

i. DANIEL. Family 2.
ii. Martha, b. 1667.

* "On the 30th day of September 1690, the following petition of his son, Daniel, was addressed to the Court."

"To the honord Cortt now sitting att ipswige this may signify to your honors that whereas by the pronvidence of God my father Daniel Bradly was slaine by the hand of the heathen, and left no will as to the disposing of his outward estatte I request his brother Joseph may be appointed administrator." "Daniel Bradley."

There is no record in Haverhill of the birth of the son, Daniel Bradley, Jr., and only the year of the birth of Martha is given.

It is quite probable that Daniel and Martha were born in some other town, perhaps before the removal of their father to Haverhill. The marriage might have been entered at a subsequent date and the birth of Martha may also have been entered long after the event of her birth, as was frequently the case.

Family 2.

DANIEL[2] (Daniel[1]) BRADLEY, JR., son of Daniel and Mary (Williams) Bradley; m. 1 Jan., 1686-7, Hannah Dow.

Children (b. Haverhill, Mass.):

First Generation.

Family 1.

EDWARD and DEBORAH DIX came from England to Watertown, Mass., in the fleet with Gov. Winthrop in 1630. Edward d. in Watertown prior to the removal of the family to Connecticut, leaving his widow Deborah and three children. The wid. Deborah m. (2) 16 Oct., 1667, Richard Barnes, of Marlboro, Mass., by whom she had five children between 1669 and 1683. (See Bonds Watertown, pp. 198, 753.)

Second Generation.

Children of Edward and Deborah Dix:

i. LEONARD. Family 2.

ii. John, resided in Hartford, Conn., where he and his wife (Mary BIDWELL) joined the Second Church, 10 Sept., 1686, and their seven children were baptized.

iii. William, d. Hartford, 1676.

Third Generation.

Family 2.

LEONARD[2] (Edward[1]) DIX was an early settler of Wethersfield, Conn., and according to Savage, born in 1624. He was in Wethersfield in 1645, and in Branford in 1648, where, at that date, "he received a grant of land." He was soon afterwards again in Wethersfield where he also had grants of land, and a lot in the town, on which he lived, from about 1650 till the time of his death. He is mentioned in the town books in 1655 as buying lands and in 1657 in a notice of his having "taken up" a "stray heifer." He was constable in 1672; surveyor of highways, 1684.

According to the records of the probate court, he died the 7th of Dec., 1696. His last will and testament, dated 24 Mar., 1696, was admitted to probate the 4th of Mar., 1697. In it he provides for his widow, Sarah, who died in 1709, and makes bequests to his two sons, John and Samuel, and his three daughters, Mercy, Hannah and Elizabeth, and his son-in-law, John FRANCIS.

He had also a son William, who died some time previous to the death of his father, probably unmarried.

It appears by the will of Leonard Dix that he had previously given lands to his two sons. The balance of his real estate he gave to his son Samuel, the use of certain portions being reserved for the support of the widow. He mentions in his devises of lands to Samuel "the last division of land granted him by the town," and "the land on the east side of the Great River," being "the Indian Purchase."

His personal property consisted of a horse, two cows, a heifer, swine, a large number of agricultural and mechanical instruments, a "great musket," a "long fowling piece," swords, belts, household goods, etc., all of which were appraised at £53, 10s. His indebtedness was £3, 8s. (Hartford Probate Records.) He m. Sarah ——.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

Family 6.

CHARLES[6] (Lieut. Charles,[5] Leonard,[4] John,[3] Leonard,[2] Edward,[1]) DIX, b. 9 Dec., 1764; d. 13 July, 1850; m. 5 Mar., 1786, Prudence, dau. of John and Hannah (Curtis) WELLES, of Newington, a part of the original town of Wethersfield, who was b. 12 Nov., 1766, and d. Vernon, N. Y., 15 Dec., 1845.

After his marriage he removed to Tarrington, Litchfield Co., Conn., and as stated in the history of that town, erected its first tannery. Here his first four children were born. He returned to Wethersfield about the year 1795, and removed thence to Vernon, Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1802. He bought a tract of land in the south part of that town adjoining the Oneida Indian Reservation, on which he resided till his death, "aged 85 years, 7 mos., 4 days." He brought with him to his new home sufficient means to enable him to assume from the first an independent financial position, which he maintained during his life. His lands were picturesquely located in a valley and extended up the hills on both sides. He erected here a dwelling, tannery, shoe shop, flax-mill and ropewalk, and in these early days the old farm was a busy place.

He treated his Indian neighbors with great kindness and generosity and they were always friendly. The writer in his visits in early childhood, often saw the Indians seated nearby, on logs that had been drawn, according to tthe custom of the times, for wood, and served with food by the direction of his grandparent, Mrs. Prudence (Welles) Dix. He used also in those days to search in an old Indian burying place nearby for beads, that had been buried with the Indians and the beads found are still retained as souvenirs of happy childhood hours. The old tannery, shop, mill, ropewalk, capacious barns, and surrounding dwellings and out-buildings have long since disappeared and in their place is only a modest farm house owned and occupied by a granddaughter of Mr. Dix, who has inherited a part of the original property.

MATERNAL ANCESTRAL RECORDS

MATERNAL ANCESTORS OF MARTHA (DIX) FARMAN, TRACED IN SINGLE LINES FROM THE FIRST AMERICAN SETTLERS:

The American ancestors of Martha (Dix) Farman were, with rare exceptions, residents of Wethersfield, Conn. This town originally embraced the territory now included in the towns of Glastonbury and Newington. Excepting the original settlers, these ancestors were nearly all born in one of these three towns. The records of their births, marriages and deaths, with few omissions, are found in the town records of Wethersfield, which are still preserved. Their Wills and the inventories of their estates are found in the Probate Court Records at Hartford. There are also extant some records of births, baptisms, marriages and deaths kept by the parish clergy. The most important of these are those of the Rev. Stephen Mix, who for forty-four years, 1698-1734, was pastor of the church at Wethersfield.

This part of the author's work has been comparatively easy, in consequence of the fact that a large part of the original settlers herein mentioned and their immediate successors held high positions or were otherwise prominent men and became historical persons. Their records were carefully kept and have been frequently published.

Nearly all the original settlers of New England came to America between the years 1620 and 1640 on account of troubles in the mother country arising from differences in religious beliefs and church government.

WELLES FAMILY

GOVERNOR THOMAS WELLES.—It is not the intention of the writer to enter upon the English history of the Welles Family, concerning which much has been written. It will be sufficient to say that it dates back to the eighth century. Its members held numerous high positions and for distinguished services were honored with a large number of Royal grants of arms.

GOVERNOR THOMAS WELLES belonged to the Essex branch of the family. It is related that he was a non-conformist, that he refused to take the required oath of conformity to the Church of England, that having been accused and condemned, he escaped and came to America, probably in the year 1636. As to how he came or where he landed there are conflicting accounts based upon tradition. According to one account, he came in 1636 with Lords Saye and Seal, Lord Brooks and other noblemen, patentees of Connecticut, and landed at Saybrook at the mouth of the Connecticut River. These noblemen having failed in their undertaking and being discouraged by the unauspicious aspect of the country and the probable dangers to be encountered, returned to England. If Thomas Welles came with them he then went up the river and joined those who were just commencing a settlement at Wethersfield.

Savage, an acknowledged authority upon the subject of the early settlers of New England, says (vol. iv., p. 478): "It is quite uncertain when he came from England, tho' satisfactorily known that he brought three sons and three daughters; equally uncertain is the name of his wife tho' we can hardly doubt whether he brought one; and stranger still is the uncertainty of his prior residence in Massachusetts. He had good proportions of the patents of Swampscott and Dover, which he sold Aug., 1648, to Chris. Lawson. We may, then, safely conclude that a person of his education and good estate had not come over the water before 1636, and that he stayed so short a time in Boston or Cambridge as to leave no trace of himself at either, and he was established at Hartford before Gov. Haynes left Cambridge. There is a tradition of his coming with father Nathanael in the fleet with Higginson in 1629." This, Savage says, is "merely ridiculous." The first authentic record we have of his being in this country is found in the first volume of the Connecticut colonial records. In the session of the General Court, held at Hartford, 28 Mar., 1636-7, he appears as one of the magistrates. This Court had been organized and its first session held the previous year. He continued to be one of the judges of the Court till his death in 1660, having been re-elected each year. The Court first consisted of five members and afterwards of seven, the Governor being one of the number. The term of their office was for one year and the Governor could not hold his position for two successive years. One of the judges was each year chosen Dept. Governor, one Secretary and a third Treasurer. A body of deputies afterwards established, being representatives from the different localities, acting with the Court on stated occasions, constituted the legislative power of the Government of the Colony.

Thus was commenced the democratic representative system which has been expanded and adopted in all our States and by the Federal Government. By the persistence of this colony it retained its independent self-government till the time of the Revolution, while the other colonies accepted governors sent by the King from England.

On the full organization of the colonial government, in 1639, Governor Welles was chosen its first Treasurer. From 1640 to 1649 he was Colonial Secretary and then again three years Treasurer. He was acting Governor in 1654, Deputy-Governor in 1654-1656, 1657 and 1659, and Governor in 1655 and 1658. He died suddenly in Wethersfield on Sunday, 14 Jan., 1660 (Wethersfield Town Rec.), "being well at supper and dead before night." (Letter of Gov. Winthrop, dated 3 Apr., 1660.) He was buried in Wethersfield and later removed to Hartford. His residence was in Wethersfield though in consequence of his official duties he lived much of the time in Hartford, having a dwelling in each of these towns. The present village of Wethersfield is only a suburb of the latter town. "He was regarded as one of the wealthiest if not the most wealthy gentlemen in the colony and paid the largest amount of taxes." (Albert Welles History, p. 111.) That he was highly esteemed and of great influence is shown by the Colonial Records and the fact of his successive annual election for twenty-four years. As already appears, he was one of the principal actors in the establishment of the colony, in making its laws and forming precedents of local and state governments that have been followed and perpetuated. It is said that most of the early laws of the Colony were drafted by him. They certainly still exist in his handwriting in the Capitol Library at Hartford, Conn. These laws are no more severe nor essentially different from the laws of all Christian countries at that period. In the making of treaties with the Indians and negotiations with neighboring governments he took an active part.

GOVERNOR WELLES was born in England in 1598. According to Albert Welles' History, before mentioned, his first wife's maiden name was HUNT. The facts on which this opinion is based are not very conclusive. He married (2) in Wethersfield, Conn., in 1646, Elizabeth (DEMING) FOOTE, widow of Nathanael Foote, one of the first settlers of Wethersfield. She died 28 July, 1683, aged 88. She had by her first husband seven children. By her Will dated 28 Mar., 1678, she gave her lands and other property to such of their children as were then living and, in case of those deceased, to their heirs. By his first wife the Governor had five sons and three daughters. All except the youngest were born in Essex, England.

Children of Governor Thomas Welles:

i. Ann, b. about 1619; m. (1) Apr., 1646, Thomas THOMPSON, of Farmington; m. (2) Anthony HAWKINS.

ii. John, b. about 1621. He had six children; lived at Stratford. He was elected magistrate to the General Court the same year his father became Governor the second time, 1657-8. He was also a magistrate in 1658-9, and in 1659-60, and held other important positions.

iii. Robert, b. 1624.

iv. Thomas, b. 1627; m. 25 June, 1654. He was one of the patentees in the Royal Charter granted to the Colony by Charles II. in 1662; was killed by a fall from one of his own cherry trees in 1668 (Roxbury Church Records); was the progenitor of the Hartford branch of the family. It is recorded "that he was the largest and tallest man of his time in Hartford, with a strong mind and sterling, honorable character." "Grave of Thomas Welles 7 feet." He was chosen Quarter-Master of Major Mason's command in 1658, and Deputy Magistrate at Hartford in the years 1662 and 1663 (Hartford Rec.).

THOMAS KILBOURN FAMILY

THOMAS KILBOURN was born in May, 1578, and resided in Wood-Dilton Co., Comb, England. He came with his wife Frances and his children to America in the Increase in 1635. His wife was then aged 50. He was about seven years her senior. On the allotment of lands to the inhabitants of Wethersfield, made in 1639, Frances as "widow of Tho. Kilbourn received 50 acres of land." In the distribution of 1640 of "three mile lots" she received one 18 rods wide making a farm of 108 acres which was occupied by her son JOHN. This was her share as the widow of Thos. of the first division of a "Five Mile extension" of the town bought of the Indians by a committee of the people of the town. This land was on the east side of the river in that part of Wethersfield afterwards forming a part of Glastonbury. (Stiles' Weth., vol. 11, pp. 887, 897, 898.)

Children (b. in England):

"The ages are those of the Custom Inspector's Record of the time of their sailing from Eng." (Stiles' History.)

It is evident these ages as given are not wholly correct:

GILES GIBBS FAMILY

ANCESTORS OF ABIGAIL (GIBBS) DIX.

GILES GIBBS is said to have come to New England from Devonshire, England. He is first mentioned in the records of the town of Dorcester now a part of Boston. He was made a freeman of that town 4 Mar., 1632-3, and elected selectman in 1634. He probably came to Windsor, Conn., the next year and died and was buried there 21 May, 1641. His wife Katharine died in the same town 24 Oct., 1640.

Children (No record of the births has been found):

i. JACOB.
ii. Samuel,
iii. Gregory.
iv. Benjamin.
v. Sarah.

Judging from Puritan standards, these children were an unruly lot, as they seem to have frequently been in trouble with the Colonial authorities.

Family 2.

JACOB[2] (Giles[1]) GIBBS, called by his mother "eldest son," m. 4 Dec., 1657, Elizabeth ANDROS, of Hartford, who d. 13 Jan., 1695-6. He d. in Windsor 18 Mar., 1708-9.

Children born in Windsor (Matthew Grand Church Rec., and Town Rec. of Windsor):

i. Mary, b. 21 Aug., 1659.
ii. Abigail, b. 7 Jan., 1661.
iii. Jacob, b. 1 Dec., 1664; probably died soon afterwards.
iv. JACOB, b. 22 June, 1666. Family 3.
v. Sarah, b. 28 Feb., 1668.

vi. Elizabeth, b. 1 Apr., 1672.

vii. Dau., b. 12 Dec., 16—. This daughter, whose birth does not appear to have been entered either in the church or town records, was undoubtedly the "Esther Gibbs, of Windsor, Ct.," who became, 29 June, 1710, the second wife of Joseph Kilbourn. An omission to record the birth of a child was not infrequent. See Kilbourn Family.

Family 3.

JACOB[3] (Jacob,[2] Giles,[1]) GIBBS, b. Windsor, Conn., 22 June, 1666; d. Jan., 1711-12; m. 16 May, 1689 Abigail OSBORN; "b. 2nd week in March, 1671" (Windsor Town Rec.); dau. of Sergt. John and Abigail (EGLESTON) OSBORN, of Windsor. The latter were m. in Windsor 14 Oct., 1669. John Osborn, the father of Sergt. John, was an immigrant who m. 19 May, 1645, in Windsor, Ann, dau. of Richard OLDAGE. He d. 27 Oct., 1686. She d. 28 Aug., 1689.

Children of Jacob and Abigail (Osborn) Gibbs:

i. ABIGAIL, b. 3 Oct., 1694; m. 15 Apr., 1714, Leonard DIX, of Wethersfield, Conn. See Dix Family.

ii. Elizabeth, b. 26 Aug., 1697.

iii. Jacob, b. 30 July, 1700.

iv. Ebenzer, b. 8 Nov., 1703.

v. Mary, b. 26 Apr., 1706.

vi. Esther, b. 9 July, 1709.

vii. John, b. 18 Mar., 1711-12.

In papers on file in the Probate Court at Hartford relating to the settlement of the estate of Jacob Gibbs, the widow, Abigail, states that her youngest son was born seven weeks after her husband's death. She afterwards, according to other Court paper, became the wife of Henry GIBBS. As no further record of them appears, it is assumed that they moved to some other locality.

HOLLISTER FAMILY

JOHN HOLLISTER (LIEUT.), was born, as claimed, in Glastonbury, England. On coming to New England he first settled in Wymouth, and was there made a freeman 10 May, 1643. He was well educated and of a good family, and the following year made a representative to the Massachusetts General Court. In Nov. of the same year he removed to Weth., and soon became prominent in that town. He was a deputy to the General Court of Connecticut in 1645, and subsequently re-elected fourteen times. He held many other important positions. He died in Weth., leaving a Will dated 3 Apr., 1665, and a large estate to his sons and daughters. His inventory was made the 20th day of the same month. He m. Joanna, dau. of Richard TREAT by his first wife Joanna.

viii. Stephen (Capt.), b. 1658; m. (1) Abigail, dau. of Matthias TREAT; m. (2) Elizabeth, wid. of Jonathan REYNOLDS and dau. of John COLEMAN. He d. 2 Oct., 1790-1, in camp at Greenbush, New York.

TREAT FAMILY

The TREATS (Written in old records also Tratt and Trott) were an influential family of Pitminster, England, and traced their genealogy back through many generations.

RICHARD[5] (Robert,[4] Richard,[3] William,[2] John,[1]) TREAT, bp. 28 Aug., 1584, in Pitminster Church, England, under the name of Trott; m. in England (name written Treatt) 27 Apr., 1615, Alice, dau. of Hugh GAYLORD, of Pitminster, who was born in 1594. Richard was one of the early settlers of Wethersfield; was first mentioned on the record as juror, June, 1643, and as grand-juror in Sept., same year. He was chosen deputy each year from 1644 to 1657-8, and magistrate or assistant for the eight following consecutive years. He was afterwards selectman and member of various important committees; was one of the patentees in the charter of the Colony granted by Charles II. in 1662. He was also in 1663 and 1664 a member of the Council of Gov. Winthrop. The records show him to have been a large land owner. His will was dated 13 Feb., 1668. He died about a year later.

CHESTER FAMILY

Many years ago while looking for family records among the tombstones in the old burying-ground back of the church in Weth., Conn., the writer saw a table monument with the following inscription: "Here lyes the body of Leonard Chester, Armiger, late of the town of Blaby, and severall other Lordships in Leicestershire, deceased in Wethersfield, Anno Domini 1648 oetatis 39." There had also been a rude attempt to sculpture on the stone the Chester Arms. Not then knowing that Leonard Chester was one of his many ancestors, his examination of this ancient monument was only that of a disinterested visitor.

Full accounts of the Chester family and the long line of their English pedigree have been published. It appears that the Chesters were an old family of Braby, England.

WILLIAM CHESTER was of London and Barnet, County Hertford, Eng. He had two children, Robert and LEONARD.

LEONARD m. (1) Bridget, dau. of John SHARP, of Frisby; m. (2) Jane, dau. of Nicholas SAVILLE, of Braby. She was b. 1560; d. 1608.

Children by first wife:

i. JOHN.
ii. William.
iii. Sampson.
iv. Ann.
v. Alice.

JOHN m. Dorothy, dau, of Thomas HOOKER, of Leicestershire.

Children:

i. LEONARD, b. 1610; bp. 15 July, 1610. Family 1.
ii. Elizabeth, b. 1624, bp. 6 Feb., 1624.

Family 1.

LEONARD CHESTER, son of John and Dorothy (HOOKER) Chester, was one of the first settlers of Wethersfield, Conn. Dorothy was a sister of the well-known Rev. Thos. Hooker, of Hartford, and is supposed to have come to the Colonies with her son Leonard, as she appears under the name of Mrs. Dorothy Chester as grantee of three lots in Hartford in 1639. In the allotment of lands in 1639 there was allotted to "Leonard Chester, Gent.," 92 acres; in the allotment of 1640, there was allotted to "Leonard Chester, Gentleman," 432 acres. LEONARD m. Mary WADE, probably in England, came to Watertown, Mass., in 1633; was one of the proprietors of that town. Two years later he came to Wethersfield. He was there one of the first citizens and a man of influence as shown by the frequency of the mention of his name in the records. He d., prematurely, 11 Dec., 1648, ae. 39. His last will was dated 2 Aug., 1648, proved the same year. It is published in full in Goodwin's Genealogical Notes and also that of his widow, who m. (2) 1655, Hon. Richard Russel, of Charleston, Mass. In his will he mentions his "cousin Newton" (Rev. Roger Newton), certain interests he had in "Old England," and "in particular an annuity of thirty quarters of barley issuing out of the estate of Nicholas Sharpe, deceased, and by his Will bequeathed to me and my heirs."

As a specimen of early wills, that of his wife, Mrs. Russel, is given in full:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Mary Russell, widow of the late Richard Russell, of Charlestown, in his Majesty's territory and dominion in New England (formerly Mary Chester, wife of Leonard Chester, late of Wethersfield, in the Colony of Connecticut, deceased,) being often weakly in body, but of reasonable good understanding and memory; and forasmuch as I know not how soon it may please God to take me out of this world by death, I account it my duty to resign up myself, soul and body to the good will and pleasure of the Lord of life and death,—hoping and trusting, that after this temporal life is ended, to receive everlasting happiness through the only merits of Jesus Christ my Lord and only Saviour. And as concerning what temporal estate it hath pleased God in his goodness to give unto me, I do, by this last Will and Testament, give and bequeath the same in manner as followeth:

"Imprimis. After my just debts shall be paid, and my decent funeral charges defrayed, I give and bequeath unto my eldest son, Capt. John CHESTER, of Wethersfield, in the aforesaid territory and dominion in New England, the sum of thirty pounds.

"Item. I give and devise to my daughter, Mrs. Dorcas Whiting, of Billerica, in the aforesaid territory, the sum of thirty pounds, and also, my wearing apparel, and that household stuff which I shall have remaining unwilled to any other; and to her husband, the Rev. Samuel Whiting, my son-in-law, ten pounds.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my grand-daughter, Elizabeth Whiting, my bed and bedstead, bolsters, blanket and rug. More: I give to her my brass andirons, and silver tankards. More I give to said Elizabeth the trunk which is in the chamber, and what is in it.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my second son, Stephen Chester, of the aforesaid Wethersfield, merchant, the sum of forty pounds,—one chest of drawers, and a painted carpet.

"I give and bequeath unto my daughter Prudence Russell's orphans, viz., my grandson, Thomas Russell, my brick house, with four feet front on the wharf, which I bought of my son Mr. Daniel Russell: and to my two grand-daughters, Mary Russell and Prudence Russell, fifteen pounds to each one of them. More I give to my grand-daughter, Mary Russell, my silver wine cup markes M. D., and one silver spoon. More I give to my grand-daughter, Prudence Russell aforesaid, my silver plate with the Chester Arms on it. Also, I give unto the said Orphans, all that debt of thirty and two pounds due to me on the Book of Accounts. Further, it is my will, that the house and land where Thomas Rand lives, with the yard room, situated and lying in the aforesaid Charlestown, be equally given between the said Mary and Prudence Russell. Further, it is my mind and will that the small house and yard room where John Guppy at present lives and the leanto rising up against Dr. Chickering's with the privilege of water at the well, be given unto my daughter, Mrs. Dorcas Whiting aforesaid.

"Item. I give unto my son-in-law, James Russell, Esq., the sum of five pounds. "Item. I give unto my son-in-law, Capt. Richard Sprague, the sum of five pounds. "Item. I give and bequeath unto my old servant, Jno. Coultman, of Wethersfield, if then living, twenty shillings.

"And further, it is my will, that if my estate should fall short of the aforesaid legacies, then, that there be a proportionate abatement on every legatee.

"And further, I constitute and ordain my beloved sons, Mr. Samuel Whiting and Mr. Stephen Chester abovesaid, to be Executors of this my last Will and testament. And in confirmation whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 20th day of November, A. D. 1688.

"Mary Russell, L. S."

"In presence of
Edward Willson,
Jno. Newell, Sen."

Children of Leonard and Mary (WADE) Chester (b., except the first, in Weth.):

CAPT. JOHN CHESTER was successively Treasurer, Secretary, Lieut. Gov. and Gov. of Connecticut. He held other important positions and was an influential and trusted citizen of the Colony. His birth was registered in Watertown, Mass. His father came that year to Wethersfield and it has been claimed, probably erroneously, that he was the first white child born in Wethersfield. He d. 23 Feb., 1697-8. His Will was made only two days previous to his death. This Will disposes of a goodly amount of property, real and personal.

Among the items of personal property mentioned are his plate, viz.: Tankard, Porringe(r)s, Wine Cups and Silver Spoons.

FRISBIE FAMILY

EDWARD FIRSBYE, OF BRANFORD, CONN., AND HIS DESCENDANTS IN A SINGLE LINE TO ADELAIDE (FRISBIE) FARMAN.

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY.

"There is a tradition that the original home of the Frisbies was in Wales. Some have thought that their ancestors came to England with William the Conqueror from Normandy, where they are supposed to have had landed possessions, with rank and title. If this could be shown it would probably also appear that they had first migrated from England when the Northmen invaded and settled Normandy. It has also been maintained that they were Huguenots who drifted north in consequence of persecution in France and came to this country from England in the seventeenth century. Thus far not one of these suppositions seems to be capable of proof.

"There can be no question, however, that the Frisbies came to this country directly from England, where the name, an early place-name, has existed since at least the eleventh century, and probably from an earlier period. Frisby, Frisbye (Frisebi in Doomsday Book), is the name of what was originally two manors in Leicestershire, England. At the present day one of these is known as Old Frisby, or Galby cum Frisby, the other as Frisby-on-the-Wreak, a parish hamlet of a few hundred inhabitants. The final syllable, by, an early Scandinavian word meaning town, habitation, dwelling, now extant only in place-names, especially in northern England (Century Dictionary), points to a Danish origin, as early perhaps as the settlements of the Danes in the ninth century.

"In Nichol's History of Leicestershire, England (v. 4, London, 1795-1815), the name, varied in spelling, occurs in several instances. 'Frisebi, at the time of the Conqueror's Survey (Completed in 1086, and recorded in Doomsday Book), is noticed as two manors" (v. 3, p. 259). In the Church at Welham —— de Fryseby was vicar in 1239 (v. 2, p. 867). Roger de Friseby was chaplain in the church at Barkston in 1246 (v. 2, p. 20). The name appears also in memorial inscriptions in churches and elsewhere, as Frisby and de Frisby.*

"Frisbie is not necessarily a French name because it ends in ie, as has been claimed; it may rather be a variant of the less common English form Frisbye, as the Branford (Ct.) settler spelled it in his will. If it were found in France at all, it would undoubtedly owe its existence there to the Danish settlement of Normandy in the tenth century. Nor, in the absence of any form of the name from the French land records, so far as has yet been discovered, has the preposition de any other significance than that, at the time when surnames were coming into vogue in England, the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, the local name of freehold or manor or town, with or without the preposition, was often adopted for the family name.

"From whatever source, therefore, the founders of Frisby, in Leicestershire, came into England, it is altogether probable that the Frisbies of England and of the United States received their family name from what was originally the two manors called Frisebi in Doomsday Book." (REV. EDWARD S. FRISBEE, D.D.)

FIRST GENERATION.

Family 1.

"EDWARD FRISBIE settled in the town of Branford (originally Totoket), in the colony of New Haven, where he appears to have married in 1644, and to have entered his name for an allotment of land Dec. 15, 1645. No record of his birth has been found; he died in Branford May 10, 1690. His place of birth, the names of his parents, and whence he came to New England are also unknown. His name does not appear in the published lists of immigrants of the seventeenth century. Hotten's Origi-

* Different spellings of the name occur in the town records of Branford, Connecticut, as follows: ffrisbe, three times from 1699 to 1705; ffrisbe, twice 1703, 1704; ffrissbe, nine times from 1702 to 1706; ffrrisby, once 1650; ffrrissbe, seventeen times from 1673 to 1695; Fresbe, once 1724; Frisbe, thirteen times from 1724 to 1728; Frisbee, fifty times from 1705 to 1724; Frisbie, first in 1725, generally after 1728; Frisby, five times from 1652 to 1661. Frisbye occurs only in the will of Edward Firsbye, the settler of Branford." (REV. EDWARD S. FRISBEE, D.D.)

*nal Lists contain the name Frisbie, or Frisby, but twice. Richard Frisbie,† who arrived in the Jonathan in 1619, aged thirty-four, and appears in the Virginia musters in the retinue of Sergeant William Barry; and Elizabeth Frisby, who came to Virginia in the Safety in 1635. It is possible, however, not to say probable, that Edward Frisbye, of Branford, was a son of this Richard Frisbie, born on shipboard or soon after his parents reached Virginia, and that in his early manhood he made his way with others to the Colony of New Haven.

"Neither is it known to a certainty whom he married. It is believed that he was married at least twice, perhaps three times. At any rate, three names are given: Hannah ——, in 1644; Abigail CULPEPPER, and Frances ENGLAND, dau. of Jonathan England. The fact that he mentions no wife in his will would indicate that none was living when the will was made, in 1689.

"Of his life in Branford, little is known beyond the meager details that may be gleaned from the town, church, and other public records. He had a family of eleven children, some of whom, like himself, were active in the affairs of plantation and church, and his numerous descendants have included many persons of ability and eminence. He appears to have been a thrifty farmer, a substantial citizen, a considerable landowner, and well-to-do, not to say wealthy, for his time.

"Edward Frisbye was a Congregationalist of the early puritan type, but evidently less narrow and more tolerant than many of his contemporaries. In 1667 the Rev. Abraham Pierson and his following withdrew from Branford because under the new charter of the United Colonies others than church members were admitted to the rights and privileges of freemen and allowed to take part in the administration of civil affairs. This defection seriously affected the community and left the church disorganized and without a settled pastor for twenty years. Edward Frisbye and his eldest son John did not join these seceders, but were among the signers of the "New Plantation and Church Covenant of Branford." Those who entered into this covenant not only reaffirmed their loyalty to the essential principles of congregational polity and expressed their determination to support the services and institutions of the church as best they could, but they accepted the new conditions and acquiesced in them. By taking this stand and by adopting practical measures to maintain it, they proved themselves to be no less true to their convictions, no less courageous, and withal of broader minds than those who had gone out from among them to found a new theocratic community in the wilds of New Jersey." THE WILL OF EDWARD FRISBYE.

The Last Will and Testament of Edward Frisbye, of Branford:

"I, being weak in body, but perfect in understanding and memory, do make this my last will for the disposing of my worldly goods. I give to my son John so much as to make what he hath had already fifty pounds, he having already received about five and thirty pounds. I give to my son Benoni two acres home lot, viz: the middle lot, and two acres of my pasture in the mill quarter, and my cow meadow on Indian Neck; two acres of Beaver Swamp two acres of meadow at Scotch Leap, which is yet unfenced; four acres at Hopyard Plain; two acres of upland at Knocking Hollow, viz: what he now improves and what lies between that land and Great Plains path; nine acres of cow pasture land, as it shall be laid out on the north side of Thomas Wheadow's swamps; only I reserve the use of the well which is in Benoni's lot, for those that shall live on either of my home lots, so long as any of the Frisbyes or any of their heirs shall live thereon.

"I give to my son Jonathan one acre and a half of meadow at Oyster Neck, as also my lots of upland on Dutch House Neck and Oyster Neck or near thereunto.

"I give to my daughter-in-law, Rebekah Tyler, relict of my son Samuel, five shillings.

"The remainder of my lands, both upland and meadow, with the buildings thereon, with all other divisions of land, to be equally divided between my five children that now live with me, viz: Abigail, Josiah, Calib, Silence, and Ebenezer, only Ebenezer and Silence to have the pasture lot in the mill quarter for part of their proportion, and reserving the liberty for Abigail and Silence to live in my new dwelling house if they so choose, so long as they shall remain unmarried. I also desire the Rev. Mr. Samuel Russell and my son, John Frisbye, to be guardians to my son Ebenezer, and to act for him in the dividing of the lands if there be need before he come to the age of one and twenty years.

"Only what is the remainder of my lot in the Beaver Swamps (when my son Benoni hath had his two acres, which shall be on the north side of my lot), shall be equally divided between my three youngest sons, Josiah, Calib and Ebenezer.

"It is also my will that my movable estate shall be equally divided (when my son John hath had the remainder of his fifty pounds) between six of my children, Abigail, Josiah, Calib, Hannah, Silence, and Ebenezer, only my two sons, Josiah and Calib, to have my teams, that is my oxen and horse, with the furniture of the rooms, they to have it upon an appraisal. And if it be more than their proportion, then they to repay what is due from them to the other four children above mentioned; and if wanting to be made up out of the movables, only I give to my grandson, Edward Frisbye, a heifer two years old.

"This is my will also that my corn and provisions laid in for the present year with six fatting swine, and a fat beast be for my five children to live upon, viz: Abigail, Josiah, Calib, Silence and Ebenezer; and to pay my debts and if there want to pay my debts, then what is wanting shall be paid out of my movables.

"And I do make my son, John Frisbye, executor of this my will, with my hand and seal, this five and twentieth day of October, A. D. One Thousand Six Hundred and Eighty-Nine."

"JOHN FRISBIE was evidently one of the substantial, useful, and honored citizens of his generation. Jan. 31, 1676, he bought lands with house and barns at Indian Neck for the sum of eighty pounds. His name appears frequently in the records as a surveyor appointed to divide land, lay out highways, etc. He and his father were signers of the 'New Plantation and Church Covenant of Branford,' 20 Jan., 1667. According to the Rev. Timothy P. Gillett, in a semi-centennial discourse delivered in Branford 7 July, 1858, on the reorganization of the Branford Church, 7 March, 1687-8, John Frisbie was chosen one of the 'seven pillars' of the Church. He was a representative to the General Court in 1692." (REV. EDWARD S. FRISBEE, D. D.)

"The Rev. John Bowers, father of Ruth (Bowers) Frisbie, was probably born in England about 1630, the son of George Bowers, who was in Scituate, Mass., in 1637, in Plymouth in 1639, moved to Cambridge, where his wife Barbara died March 25, 1644. George Bowers died in 1656. His will, dated Nov. 8, 1656, was probated Dec. 30, 1656.

"John Bowers was graduated from Harvard College in 1649 (American Quarterly Register), one of a class of five. Soon after graduating he began to teach in Plymouth. In 1653, on the invitation of Governor Theophilus Eaton, he came to New Haven, Ct., where he was a prominent teacher for several years. In 1660 he purchased an estate in Guilford and supplied the pulpit till the Rev. Joseph Elliot was settled in 1664, probably filling the double position of preacher and teacher. When the Rev. Abraham Pierson and other planters withdrew from Branford in 1667, Mr. Bowers accepted a call to Branford, though no church was organized, and remained till 1672. In 1673, he was called to the pastorate of the church in Derby, which position he filled to his death, 14 June, 1687.

"John Bowers appears to have married twice: first, Rebecca, daughter of Thomas and Jane GREGSON, whose daughter Ruth married John Frisbie (New England Historical and Genealogical Register, v. 46; Savage, Genealogical Dictionary of New England; Beardsley and Orcutt, History of Derby, Ct.) (REV. EDWARD S. FRISBEE, D. D.)

"Thomas Gregson, Grigson, or Griegson (pronounced Grixson), came from London to Boston June 26, 1637, in company with Governor Eaton and John Davenport, and with them went to New Haven. He was one of the chief men of the Colony, an active merchant, and an assistant of the first treasurer and first commissioner for the union with other New England colonists on the east side of the harbor. In January, 1646, he sailed for London with Lamberton and "divers other goodly persons," of whom nothing was ever heard, the little vessel having, no doubt, foundered. He left a wife, Jane, a son, Richard, and eight daughters."—SAVAGE.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Family 4.

GIDEON[4] (Edward,[3] John,[2] Edward,[1]) FRISBIE, son of Edward and Martha (Pardee) Frisbie, b. Branford, Ct., 16 June, 1713 (bp. Aug., 1713); d. Canaan, N. Y.; m. 17 Jan., 1733-4 Desire GRANNIS, of New Haven, Ct.

GIDEON FRISBIE probably moved from Branford to Sharon, Conn., in the summer of 1743 having previously visited the place and bought and prepared a home for his family. Some of his relatives had preceeded him and settled in Sharon. A deed was given to Gideon of lands in Sharon dated 17 Apr., 1743, consideration £560, in which he is described as "of Branford." Another deed, consideration £160, dated Mar. 1, 1743-4 (that is the next year) was given him in which he is described as "of Sharon." Other deeds given to and by him in the years 1744-1745-1746, 1747 and 1749 describe him as "of Sharon." In 1758 he gave a deed of lands in Sharon in which he is mentioned as "of Oblong, Dutches Co., N. Y." Oblong was a strip of land two miles wide adjoining Connecticut and formerly claimed by that Colony. It was only about a mile distant from Sharon Village. In 1759 Gideon gave another deed in which Oblong was mentioned as his residence. Feb. 5, 1771, he executed a quitclaim deed dated 31 Mar., 1770, of lands in Sharon, consideration "20 shillings," in which he was described as "of New Canaan (now Canaan), County of Albany, Provence of New York." The deed was executed in Albany Co., in presence of Daniel Calkins and Daniel Calkins, Jr., and seems to have been given to perfect a title. It thus appears from the records that Gideon resided in Branford until 1743, and afterwards in Sharon and Oblong till 1759. The precise date of his going to Canaan, where he died, is not known though it is probably as early as 1770.

iv. Edward, b. Branford, 1742; d. Canaan, N. Y., 1797.
v. Martha, b. Sharon, Ct., 29 Apr., 1744.
vi. John, b. Sharon, 31 Dec., 1746.

SIXTH GENERATION.

Family 5.

PHILIP (Lieut. Col.[5]), (Gideon,[4] Edward,[3] John,[2] Edward,[1]) FRISBIE, son of Gideon and Desire (Grannis) Frisbie, b. in Branford, Ct., 1740; d. in Canaan, N. Y., 12 Mar., 1813. He m. (1) Phoebe HENDRICKS; m. (2) Mrs. Sarah BEEBE; b. 1752; d. 29 Nov., 1842. No records of the births of Philip, his brother, Edward and his sister Desire have been found, though from his monument in the cemetery at Canaan, N. Y., it is known that Philip was born in 1740.

The entries of dates of births, marriages and deaths in books kept by town clerks for that purpose was not obligatory and omissions occurred. Sometimes after considerable delay a number of births of the same family were entered at the same time. In the case of one of the Frisbies who removed from Branford to Sharon a short time previous to 1743, the births of a number of his children were entered in the latter place, such entry having been neglected in Branford. "In the records of Canaan, N. Y., the home of the family from about 1770, the name Grixson Frisbie occurs, which has been supposed to be intended for Gideon. But it may have been the name of another son of Gideon, born in Branford, named from the Thomas Gregson before mentioned (pronounced Grixson), an ancestor by marriage of the Canaan family. The same name, Grixson, appears in a later generation, with indications pointing to the Canaan family.

"Philip Frisbie may have been named after Philip POND, the husband of his father's sister, Thankful Frisbie, who also had a son Philip, born in 1740. He appears to have been the first Philip among the Frisbies, and it is to be noted that the names Gideon and Philip are to be found so far as is known, only in that branch of the Frisbie family which finally settled in Canaan, N. Y. In this line these two names have been perpetuated in each generation of the numerous descendants of Colonel Philip Frisbie.

"Philip was an active, bold and influential man. Traditions of his courage and of his daring exploits, especially in connection with the Indians, are still current among his descendants. He was captain of the Third Company, Seventeenth Regiment of New York State Militia in the Revolutionary War; promoted to Major June 16, 1778, vice Bonck, resigned on account of ill health; member of the New York Assembly in 1781-2, and in 1792-3. He was appointed Sept. 28, 1787, Lieutenant-Colonel of a militia regiment in Columbia County, N. Y. The original commission, signed by Governor George Clinton, was still in existence in 1897. (REV. EDWARD S. FRISBEE, D. D.)

"Colonel Philip Frisbie was prominent in the affairs of Kings District, a large territory in the northeastern part of Columbia County, originally created by act of the legislature in 1772. In 1776 he was a member of the 'Committee of Inspection' for that year; also of a commission to 'consult and agree upon a general plan to petition for the lands' in Kings District that were jeopardized by Indian and other conflicting claims. He was appointed by the inhabitants of Kings District June 14, 1776, one of the twelve delegates to represent the County of Albany in the provincial congress in favor of the independence of the American colonies, and to draw resolutions for this purpose." (Ellis' History of Columbia County, N. Y., 1878.)

Philip was three to four years old when his father removed from Branford to Sharon. His first four children as claimed and possibly the fifth were born in the latter place; the others in Canaan, N. Y. He was present at the first town meeting of Canaan which was held May 5, 1772.

HON. DAVID HARROWETH[7] (Edward,[6] Philip,[5] Gideon,[4] Edward,[3] John,[2] Edward,[1]) FRISBIE, b. Whitesboro, Oneida County, N. Y., 7 Oct., 1813; d. Galesburg, Ill., 28 Mar., 1900; m. Floyd, N. Y., Nov., 1835, Jemima SKINNER, dau. of Onias Childs and Terza (Bell) Skinner, b. Whitsboro, N. Y., 22 May, 1814; d. Galesburg, Ill., 18 Apr., 1881.

"Mr. Frisbie, on the death of his father in 1821, went with his mother to Albany, where he resided with his oldest brother, Eleazer. At the age of seventeen, his Uncle Eleazer having died, he returned to Oneida Co. and taught a school in Floyd two years and afterwards a larger school in Whitesboro. While teaching he spent his leisure time in reading law.

"Immediately after his marriage, he removed to Peoria Co., Ill., where he and his brother-in-law, Onias Childs Skinner, afterwards Judge of the Supreme Court of Illinois, bought a large tract of land.

"Mr. Skinner remained some years in Peoria and then removed to Quincy, Ill. Mr. Frisbie removed to Henderson, Ill. Through various purchases they acquired large tracts of land. In 1855 Mr. Frisbie removed to Galesburg, Ill., where he continued during his life a large owner and dealer in real estate.

"He was originally a Whig, but one of the organizers of the Republican party, to which he continued a staunch adherent during the rest of his life. He was a zealous and active member of the Bloomington convention, the first Republican convention held in Illinois.

"He was a personal friend of Lincoln and present at the first law-suit tried by him. It was on his advice that Mr. Lincoln was employed in the case. In 1856, immediately after the organization of the party, Mr. Frisbie was elected by the Republicans to the Illinois legislature.

"He took a keen interest in local affairs and was an active supporter of all public improvements. He obtained for Galesburg its charter and the charter of two railroads entering or passing through the city.

"He was a great reader, had a tenacious memory and a remarkable command of English. He was a man of ideas, which he did not hesitate to express plainly and forcibly. His quick perception, bright intellect and keen, incisive wit made him a formidable opponent in a controversy. He was a loyal, generous friend but uncompromising in what he thought was right. He was a brilliant conversationalist, a magnetic speaker and a man of marked personality. While there was nothing very remarkable in his life, he was always a power in local affairs. Up to within a few days of his death, in his eighty-seventh year, his physical ability was as great, his judgment in business as clear and his intellect as unclouded as when he was in his prime."
